

PLAY GROUNDS ARE BEING DAMAGED

The park keepers have recently learned that vandalism has been practiced in the play grounds of Liberty park to the extent that apparatus has been tampered with and the screen netting around the place cut. The three top barb wires encircling the upper part of the fence have been cut to allow climbing over the fence into the play grounds.

The play grounds close at 9 o'clock in the evening and no one is supposed to occupy that part of the park after that time. An officer has been charged of the grounds since they were opened for the children and care has been taken to close them at the appointed time. It has been discovered, however, that there have been intruders who have not been very particular as to the manner in which they used the premises.

It is said by the officers that the destruction of the play grounds and the damaging of the fixtures used for the pleasure of the children will be investigated. Efforts will be made to catch the guilty parties and it is more than likely that when captured the courts will not deal very leniently with them. Hundreds of little children play in Liberty park each day and the play grounds are held to be almost sacred by the youngsters.

SIGN OF DISTRESS GIVEN BY INLOW

Salt Lake, May 14.—Because A. S. Rollo, expert horticulturist and agriculturalist of Elberta, Utah, suffered from toothache on the night of October 5, last year, and took a long walk to try to ease the pain he was the state's star witness yesterday in the trial of Caleb A. Inlow, charged with the murder of Thomas "Eddie" White, who was murdered in this city on that night.

Rollo, whose examination occupied the greater part of yesterday afternoon, swore that he heard the two shots fired that killed White; that he ran to a hiding place from which he could watch the car in which White was killed; that he saw two figures leave the car. One of these was tall and slender, the other shorter and stouter. Both were clothed in long, dark coats. Rollo then approached the car after these persons had left and saw the body of White crouched on the seat of the car as though he were drunk or asleep.

Saw Woman Enter Car.
The examination of Rollo, which consumed several hours, and which was still in progress at the hour of adjournment, was preceded by that of a number of other witnesses who saw Inlow and his wife about the Kenyon hotel on the night of the murder, and one of whom saw Mrs. Inlow enter White's car and drive away.

The day was full of developments of the state's case and many of the strong features which were outlined in the state's opening declaration were brought out from the witnesses.

A. S. Rollo was the star witness of the afternoon session, and though he was put through a searching examination by the defense, but few serious flaws could be picked in his narrative.

Rollo testified that he was 53 years of age. He had an exhibit at the state fair and on the night of October 4 had visited the Eagles' club at West Temple and Second South streets. He suffered great pain from an ulcerated tooth, he said, and to seek relief went for a long walk. He walked to 9th South street and West Temple, and then east to 3rd East street and southward on that street.

Heard Shots Fired.

He said that when in Third East street a few rods below Ninth South he saw an automobile approaching from the south. Then he heard a shot and ran across the street and secreted himself.

He heard a second shot as he was running. "I turned and saw two persons leaving the automobile," he said. "I do not know who fired the shots. I saw the tall figure jump on the west side of the automobile. When I ran, the lights on the automobile were on. When I returned the lights were off. The lights were out when the figures left the car."

Rollo said that one of the figures was taller than the average, and thin and wore a long dark coat. The other was shorter, also clad in a dark coat. He could not see whether the short person was a man or a woman.

After the shots were fired Rollo stood quietly by the house for four or five minutes and the two figures moved toward the south on the west side of the street after leaving the automobile and he knew no more of their movements.

After Rollo left the house, he said, he walked south and crossed the street to the west side, near the auto, and saw a man crouched in the seat as though asleep or drunk. The pain from his tooth was so great he paid little attention to the figure on the seat, but noticed a dim red light at the rear of the car. He walked a considerable distance to Tenth South street, turned west to State street, and then went back to his hotel.

Rollo said that he was a witness at the preliminary hearing of Mrs. Inlow and saw Inlow there. Rollo said that he was a member of the Odd Fellows, the Eagles and the Red Men's fraternities.

"Describe to the jury what was done during the preliminary hearing when you met Inlow," said the district attorney.

"After I had given a part of my testimony on the stand," Rollo continued, "and during a recess in the courtroom, Inlow grasped me by the hand and said, 'see that you are an Odd Fellow.'"

Rollo and the jury who had been excused during the argument, returned to the courtroom and Rollo resumed the stand.

"You may state what occurred between you and Inlow," instructed Mr. Farnsworth.

"As far as I remember he caught me by the hand," Rollo testified, "and said, 'I see you are an Odd Fellow. This is an awful position to be in. I am innocent,' or words to that effect. I said, 'This places me in a bad position.'"

"Was there anything unusual in the way he shook your hand?"

Rollo was puzzled by the question, realizing that the attorney was treading on delicate ground for him. In relation to his obligation as a member of the Odd Fellows to retain their secrets.

"Was there any movement by the defendant that you noticed before he spoke to you?" again asked Mr. Farnsworth.

"He proved himself an Odd Fellow," said Rollo.

During his cross-examination, Rollo admitted that he had never been able to learn the cardinal directions, north, south, east or west, though he could read his course if he had a compass in his hand. He confessed that he was continually "turned around" as to directions and could not tell directions unless he could see the sun.

He had first told his story to a deputy sheriff of Utah county and afterward to the county attorney, district attorney and other officials of this county. He could not describe to them his trip on that night but began his story by saying he had led them foot by foot over his route.

"You sometimes imagine things and think you have seen them don't you?" asked Mr. Walton.

"No, I'm not crazy yet," answered Rollo, whose cross-examination will be resumed this morning.

MILITARY BAND TO FURNISH THE MUSIC

Arrangements have been completed by the social committee of the Ogden High School Alumni association for the annual reception and ball to be given in honor of the graduating students of the High school. The party will be given in the High school auditorium, Tuesday evening, May 27. Ogden's new military band has been engaged to furnish the dance music.

The band was engaged after much deliberation of the subject. It was finally decided that to use a band for dance music would be novel and add to the enjoyment of the occasion. Although the evening may be warm on that date, the large hall can be made like an outside pavilion by means of the complete ventilating system that is installed at the school.

The practice of giving a complimentary reception to the graduates is an old one, and is so firmly fixed that it has become a regular feature on the school program.

FROST DID NOT DAMAGE FRUIT

While the temperature in the city last night did not reach the freezing point, it is reported that some of the tender plants were nipped by frost in the farming districts.

Fruit trees were not touched but beans, tomatoes, cucumbers and some of the strawberry vines were damaged. In some parts of the city the frost was quite heavy, leaving the alfalfa in a wilted condition this morning.

In the districts outside the city, tomatoes were pinched a little. It is said, however, that the damage was slight and that in many places throughout the country no damage at all was done.

J. M. White, manager of the Utah Fruit Exchange, and C. A. Hickenlooper, of the Pioneer Fruit company, say that the prospects for the fruit crop in Weber county and the state is good and that last night's frost did no damage. The fruit trees have passed the danger point insofar as frost is concerned. They are hoping that the country will not be visited this year by heavy hailstones.

They claim that the place hardest hit by frost this year is the bench land between the Ogden river and North Ogden.

CITY HALL IS TO HAVE A CLEANING

Property owners on Duway street, between 27th and 28th streets, and between Lincoln and Wall avenues, have petitioned the city commissioners to open the street. The board this morning referred the petition to the superintendent of streets.

Brig Ballantyne, manager of the Ogden Plumbing & Heating company, presented a three-year-old claim to the commissioners in the sum of $39.25 for repairing fire station No. 2. The account was referred to Mayor A. G. Fall, superintendent of public affairs and finance. In his petition for settlement, Mr. Ballantyne says that while there was a question three years ago when the work was done, whether it was substantial, the threat hard winters have proved that it was a good job and the improvement is still intact, so that that protest cannot be made at this time.

The city recorder was authorized to advertise for bids for cleaning the exterior of the city hall. The improvement will consist of cleaning brick and stone and the painting of wood and iron work.

WORLD'S MARKETS

WALL STREET.

New York, May 14.—None of the energy displayed in the marking up of prices in the financial trading yesterday was visible in speculation during the morning. Profit taking offset the slight stimulus derived from the rise in foreign markets, but realizing sales were not pressed and prices rallied easily when offerings were withdrawn.

Bull traders were inclined to buy on recessions, basing their positions on the market's calm reception of New York Central's financing plan, and the steps taken at Washington in the movement for higher freight rates. There was no sustaining inquiry, however, and movements were so small that the market could hardly be said to have developed a definite tone. Lack of outside orders was apparent in the narrowness of speculation, no transactions occurring during the morning in several stocks which recently have been active.

Bonds were steady.

All stocks had a manifestly easier tone in the last half of the session. Absence of demand and scattered liquidation of minor shares contributed to the market's depression.
